

International Symposium on Veterinary Public Health, Food Safety and Major Emergent Animal Diseases

23rd-25th October 2011, Chengdu, Sichuan Province, China

Part of Annual Conference of the Chinese Association of Animal Science and Veterinary Medicine (CAAV) Conference

This exciting international event will showcase leading research and advances in veterinary public health and food safety which are important to China and the global community. It will bring together international experts from academia, industry and international organisations in infectious diseases of food animals, zoonoses, current epidemiological methods and disease surveillance, and food safety and the environment.

HIGHLIGHTS

Addresses by preeminent speakers in the field including:

- Roy Curtiss III (Arizona State University)
- Paul-Pierre Pastoret (OIE)
- Glyn Hewinson (AH-VLA, UK)
- Lertrak Srikitjakarn (Chiang Mai, Thailand)
- Joachim Otte (FAO)
- Birgit Nørrung (EFSA)

Plus other speakers from: Universities of Nottingham and Minnesota, Roslin Institute, Pfizer Animal Health, CAU, AH-VLA and RVC, UK

Presentations on important issues in public health including:

- Novel approaches to infection control
- International approaches to food safety
- Antibiotics and food safety
- Influenza and immunomodulation
- Bovine tuberculosis
- Genetics of host disease resistance
- Advances in genomic technology and understanding infection

Interactive discussions involving a panel of experts on:

- The role of veterinarians in public health
- Chinese postgraduate veterinary education
- Major public health issues in China
- Closer co-operation in public health between China and the West

SPONSOR

The International Veterinary Collaboration for China (IVCC) is a coordinated alliance of UK, US and Chinese veterinary universities and related industry dedicated to the advancement of veterinary medical education and standards of practice in the People's Republic of China.

REGISTRATION & ENQUIRIES

The Symposium web-site is currently work-in-progress. Until it is ready for use, please contact Ms. Le Chang by email (le.chang@nottingham.ac.uk) to register or for further enquiries.

ORGANISING COMMITTEE

IVCC MEMBERS

